Developing a compelling personal brand

- Making you stand out from the crowd

I work with successful executives and business owners across all sectors who want to get even better at what they do, and realise their true potential. I help business leaders:

- By being a sounding board and helping them think through issues, opportunities and critical incidents
- By really challenging them to get clarity and focus on what is important, and what will drive the business forward
- To develop their style and behaviour to increase their effectiveness

Who do I work with?

- Business owners who have a passion and a desire to develop themselves and grow their business.
- Senior managers and executives of medium and large corporate companies.
- Female executives and business owners determined to succeed.
- Individuals, senior managers and directors specifically, who want to prepare for a new job or make a career change.
- Leadership teams of small to medium businesses (up to £50million)

My expertise

- Coaching and mentoring
- Robust challenge
- Financial understanding
- Sales & marketing
- Board experience

Achievements and client feedback

Coach to the director for global content services for a major global device manufacturer. The coaching supported his transition from a business development role to his new global responsibility.

Result: Within 6 months a team was established across 10 countries, a business plan was put in place, resulting in the on-time launch of a new digital tablet including content.

“Peter employs a very effective method of not providing answers, but rather continuously posing thoughtful and, often, challenging questions, which force me to identify issues and seek solutions myself, and thereafter to implement them.”
